UPPER BULBOURNE REPORT OCTOBER 2025

Here are the water table readings for the upper Bulbourne which were taken around 8.30 am on a dry, cloudy morning. As ever, following the report are Bob's monthly rainfall summary, Christian Sévigny's garden nature notes and Ned Hunt's observations on Rushey Meadow.

WATER TABLE ON 1 NOVEMBER, 2025

Dudswell Bridge - the northernmost datum point

The water table is 3.02 m below datum – a drop of 28 cm over the month. The bed is completely dry.

Northchurch Recreation Ground

The water table is 2.21 m below datum. This is the first time we have been able to take a reading here for several months so it looks as if someone from the EA has been to unblock the channel. Many thanks! The river bed is completely dry and now indistinguishable from the cress beds which have now all died back completely.

Northchurch Primary School

The water table is 1.56 m below datum – 13cm lower than last month. The stream bed is still dry. The large willows on the far bank of the river have recently been cut and some of the vegetation trimmed back. A drain, probably from the road, has been cleared but with the amount of silt in the river will quickly block again once the river starts to flow.

Billet Lane Berkhamsted – the southernmost datum point

The water table is 1.81 m below datum - only 1 cm lower than last month. The stream bed is completely dry but all 3 channels under the road were badly blocked with debris including branches, logs, plastic sheets etc so we have unblocked them and cleared the bed at this point.

Before After

We did notice, however, that slightly upstream from the Billet Lane bridge, a fairly large tree is lying right across the river bed which in times of flow must be impeding the flow considerably.

RAINFALL SUMMARY AND NATURE OBSERVATIONS FOR OCTOBER 2025 by Bob Farrer

A total of 64 mm of rain fell on Dudswell last month – the long-term average for Berkhamsted, in October, is 84mm. Over half of the total fell between the 19th and 23rd.

There were long periods of high pressure in the middle of the month and this is usually associated with bright skies and warmth. Alas, this last month combined high pressure (1035 hPa) with thick cloud which led to 'anticyclonic gloom' from the 10th to the 15th of the month. This Met Office term describes a period during which winds are too light to disperse persistent high cloud which leads to mist, fog and drizzle.

It is noteworthy that this October is the ninth successive month with lower than average rainfall. Only January produced more rain than the seasonal monthly average. This pattern has been reported from most of the UK with the exception of the far northwest.

This has led to the Met Office and Environment Agency to warn that 2026 threatens to be a year of prolonged drought unless above average rainfall arrives soon.

OCTOBER NATURE NOTES by Christian Sévigny

The long, hot summer has really brought out the best of the autumn colours and we've been treated to some beautiful shades of yellow, orange, and red this year. However, Storm Amy at the start of October, followed by Storm Benjamin about ten days later, have blown quite a few leaves away. The trees and hedges are starting to look a bit sparse now, though there's still quite a touch of colour clinging on here and there.

Pheasants often come into the garden in the autumn. One evening at dusk, I noticed a male pheasant fly up into a tall sycamore where he settled for the night. He must have been at least 10 m off the ground. When I checked on him early next morning, sure enough, he was still perched there in the same spot. It always surprises me to see how high pheasants can roost.

Three times last week, a water rail ventured out onto the lawn early in the morning. Each time, it pottered for around ten minutes using its long red beak to forage. One morning, we saw it pulling a worm from the lawn. Unfortunately, it had a bad leg and had to hop across the grass. Water rails don't often come out into the open. They're shy birds that prefer marshy areas with plenty of cover, so we felt quite lucky to spot one in the garden. People often say they're easier to hear than to see: their call is a funny, grunting sound that's a bit like a piglet squealing!

There are fewer insects now, but I still managed to spot a few during October. Yesterday, a bee was flying around two nearly dead ragged robin flowers, desperate to extract some nectar but with only two flowers available, it kept flying from one to the other and back again. I also saw two dragonflies today. A week ago, I watched a peacock butterfly fluttering about before settling on the patio to bask, wings spread wide in the warmth of the autumn sun. The butterfly has probably found a place to hibernate by now. I've also noticed a few wasps, especially young queens, hovering around the shed, no doubt searching for a snug spot to see them through the winter.

We've all seen those fairytale toadstools with bright red caps and white spots dotted around the woods. One of those – a fly agaric (Amanita muscaria) – popped up in the garden last week. As it's known to be toxic, I was surprised to notice a chunk missing from it one morning. At first, I thought something might have fallen on it, but the next day another bite had gone!

Curious to find out what was happening, I set up the wildlife camera and the following morning, the mystery was solved. The footage showed a squirrel happily nibbling away at the mushroom! He actually decapitated it completely, carried the top off and nibbled at it while perched on a pile of bricks. He left a large amount to be finished later.

OCTOBER REPORT FROM RUSHEY MEADOW by Ned Hunt

The ponds in Rushey Meadow remain dry, but occasionally we accidentally disturb a toad or see a smooth newt scuttling away. A couple of weeks ago the two cows and the calf were collected and have joined another group in a field at Wigginton, before being housed in barns for the winter near Cholesbury. Despite the drought they have done very well, with the two Herefords especially, displaying a lovely rich auburn coat. Our four rams definitely miss their company. We actually think the calf believes it's a sheep as they relate incredibly well together – as you can see from the photo.

In preparation for next year's lambing we penned all our girl/ewe sheep a week ago and gave them a check over, pedicure and a trim. Over the next few days they will be back at Rushey Meadow to join Gerry our ram. Unlike commercial sheep we do not put our younger ewes with our ram, until they are two years old, so this years 'lambs' will need to be kept in a separate field until Gerry is removed.

If anyone is particularly observant and colour conscious this autumn, the field opposite the entrance to Boswick Lane is a slightly different shade of green from usual. That is because instead of a cereal crop being grown, we have had it all sown to grass. This is to accommodate our growing sheep flock and also, so we can juggle animals around fields more regularly and try to naturally reduce potential infection from a whole host of sheep diseases. We are very much looking forward to seeing animals grazing this field after the hay is mowed next summer. It is the first time it has ever been in grass to my knowledge and may help perhaps give Dudswell a slightly more rural feel.
